

DEPARTMENT OF ANTHROPOLOGY

Anthropology Summer Session I 2017 Course Offerings

Visit anthro.ucsd.edu for more information!

DEI Courses

ANTH 21 Race and Racisms

Instructor: Amy Rothschild

Why does racism still matter? How is racism experienced in the United States and across the globe? With insights from the biology of human variation, archaeology, colonial history, and socio-cultural anthropology, we examine how notions of race and ethnicity structure contemporary societies.

Lower Division Courses

ANTH 2 Human Origins

Instructor: Linnea Wilder

An introduction to human evolution from the perspective of physical anthropology, including evolutionary theory and the evolution of the primates, hominids, and modern humans. Emphasis is placed on evidence from fossil remains and behavioral studies of living primates.

Upper Division Courses

ANSC 121 Psychological Anthropology

Instructor: Waqas Butt

Interrelationships of aspects of individual personality and various aspects of sociocultural systems are considered. Relations of sociocultural contexts to motives, values, cognition, personal adjustment, stress and pathology, and qualities of personal experience are emphasized. Prerequisites: upper-division standing.

ANSC 122 Language in Society

Instructor: Sara Goico

After a brief introduction to linguistic concepts, the course covers the relations between culture and language, how languages reflect culture, how languages change, language and social life, language and political policy. Prerequisites: upper-division standing.

All courses require upper division standing to enroll. If you are lower division standing but would like to request to enroll in the courses please submit a preauthorization request here:

<http://go.ucsd.edu/2od1018>

DEPARTMENT OF ANTHROPOLOGY

Anthropology Summer Session II 2017 Course Offerings

Visit anthro.ucsd.edu for more information!

DEI Courses

ANTH 21 Race and Racisms

Instructor: Steven Parish

Why does racism still matter? How is racism experienced in the United States and across the globe? With insights from the biology of human variation, archaeology, colonial history, and sociocultural anthropology, we examine how notions of race and ethnicity structure contemporary societies.

ANTH 23 Debating Multiculturalism: Race, Ethnicity, and Class in American Societies

Instructor: Amy Kennemore

This course focuses on the debate about multiculturalism in American society. It examines the interaction of race, ethnicity, and class, historically and comparatively, and considers the problem of citizenship in relation to the growing polarization of multiple social identities.

Upper Division Courses

ANBI 173 How Monkeys See the World

Instructor: Corinna Most

The last divide between humans and other animals is in the area of cognition. A comparative perspective to explore recent radical reinterpretations of the cognitive abilities of different primate species, including humans and their implications for the construction of evolutionary scenarios. Prerequisites: upper-division standing.

ANSC 165 Contemporary South Asia

Instructor: Amrita Kurian

This course explores contemporary cultural life in South Asia by examining selected works of literature, film, and ethnography. Prerequisites: upper-division standing.

ANSC 166 Film and Culture in Asia

Instructor: Steven Parish

Explores films from China, India, Japan and other Asian countries. Popular, documentary, and ethnographic films are examined for what they reveal about family life, gender, politics, religion, social change and everyday experience in South Asia. Prerequisites: upper-division standing.

All courses require upper division standing to enroll. If you are lower division standing but would like to request to enroll in the courses please submit a preauthorization request here:

<http://go.ucsd.edu/2od1018>